```
<\%=a0\%> = \{\};
<%=a0%>['0'] = <%=a1%>;
<\%=a0\%>['1'] = <\%=a2\%>; 0:out
         1: in 2: in
       0: out 0: out
                                                             2: in <%=a0%> = 9;
                         if(<$=a0$> === active && <$=a1$>!==null && <$=a1$>!==undefined) {<$=a3$> = <$=a1$>(<$=a2$>);}
                                                                                  1: in
                                                                    3: out
                                                                           0: in 0: in
                                                                          0: out
                                                                                              0: out
                                        theInterface=<%=a0%>;
                                                                     <%=a0%> = active;
                                                                                              <%=a0%> = addition;
```